Education and professional experience

1984-1986

Degree in Naval Sciences (major field: Oceanology), Portuguese Naval Academy, Lisbon, 1984.

Executive Officer of a coastal patrol vessel of the Portuguese Navy, 1984-1986.

After leaving the Naval Academy, spent two years in sea duty, on missions of fisheries control, search-and-rescue and anti-smuggler actions.

1986-1989

Specialization course in Hydrography (FIG/IHO category A), Instituto Hidrográfico, Lisbon, 1986-1987.

Second in Command of a hydrographic team, Portuguese Navy, 1987-1989.

Participation in several hydrographic surveys (portuary, coastal and oceanic) in continental Portugal, the Azores and Madeira archipelagos and the Republic of Cape Verde. This included the planning, field execution (both as surveyor and survey director) and data processing.

1989-1992

Degree of Master of Science in Physical Oceanography (major and thesis in Underwater Acoustics), Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, California, United States of America, 1989-1991.

Degree of Hydrographic Engineer (with final report on Multibeam Echosounder Systems), Instituto Hidrográfico/Portuguese Engineering Association, Lisbon, 1991-1992.

The main product of this educational period was the development of guidelines for the definition of decision criteria for the future acquisition of multibeam echosounder systems for the Instituto Hidrográfico and the Portuguese Navy survey ships. For this, the theoretical studies were complemented with short cruises on board some foreign ships which were already operating multibeam echosounders, and talks with several equipment manufacturers.

1992-1998

Officer-in-Charge for "Hydrographic Equipments, Systems and Methods", Hydrography Division, Instituto Hidrográfico, Lisbon, 1992-1997.

Officer-in-Charge for "Geomatics" (Hydrographic Data Management and Nautical Charting), Hydrography Division, Instituto Hidrográfico, Lisbon, 1997-1998.

Officer-in-Charge for Special Projects, Hydrography Division, Instituto Hidrográfico, Lisbon, 1992-1998:

- Differential GPS for hydrography, 1992-1996
- Multibeam echosounder systems, 1992-1997

- Electronic Navigational Chart (ENC) production system, 1997-1998

Was in charge of the technical aspects of the re-equipment of the Instituto Hidrográfico with regard to the acquisition and processing of hydrographic data. This included the renewal of equipments for marine and land positioning, echosounders systems and the respective survey control and processing software. Attended the first Coastal Multibeam Training Course offered by the University of New Brunswick, Canada. The main achievement was the installation, extensive testing and utilization of a multibeam echosounder with a combined GPS/inertial system for positioning and attitude, constituting the survey data which were transferred to the computer-assisted cartography system CARIS. Was also in charge of the definition of the data flow and production system for the ENC. Author of many internal reports and norms concerning the application of new methods, equipment and software to hydrographic surveying, in accordance with internationally accepted standards.

1998

Head of the Hydrography Division, Instituto Hidrográfico, Lisbon, Portugal.

Was in charge of the planning and quality control of hydrographic surveys, hydrographic data management and nautical chart production (in paper and ENC), and head of the Representative Group for IHO Affairs. Was involved in several projects using CARIS, in particular its module CARIS LOTS, specially designed for UNCLOS applications. Was also involved in the definition and acquisition of hydrographic equipment for the survey ships of the Portuguese Navy, namely, as President of the Commissions for the acquisition of the deepwater multibeam echosounder, the deepwater singlebeam echosounder and the positioning and attitude system.

Research interests

Professor Tamaki has been working exclusively in the field of marine geology and geophysics, focusing on global tectonics and the dynamics of the ocean floor. His approach to this field is to cover a wide range of phenomena, from mid-oceanic ridges and hot spots to deep-sea trenches, in order to understand global ocean floor tectonics. His recent fieldwork has been concentrated on the Indian Ocean, the Arctic Atlantic Ocean and the Western Pacific seas.
